TITLE: Martin Family Collection

COLLECTION NUMBER: B2007.005

OVERVIEW OF THE COLLECTION

Dates: 1925-1948

Extent: 18 boxes

Language and Scripts: English

Name of creator(s): Augustus ("Gus") B. Martin, Bessie Martin, Lomen Bros.

Administrative/Biographical History:

"Between 1926-1935 the Rev. Augustus B. ('A. B.' or 'Gus') and Bessie Martin lived and taught in the Yup'ik [...] village of Kwigillingok on the lower Kuskokwim coast, seventy miles downriver from Bethel, Alaska. A Moravian mission had been established at Kwigillingok over a decade before by the Rev. Ferdinand Drebert. Like Drebert, the Martins learned the Yup'ik language in order to communicate with their parishioners and students, some of whom still fondly remember these early elitnauristat (teachers) [...].

"Gus Martin arrived in southwest Alaska with two primary objectives--to improve communication and transportation in the region. He accomplished the first by setting up and operating a small radio station. To improve transportation--then primarily by dog sled and boat--Martin helped construct a number of snow planes. These 1930s versions of a snow machine were homemade contraptions composed of old airplane and automobile parts. Martin built his second plane at Kwigillingok from a Model A Ford engine which he modified for aircraft use, and it was used for some years at the Moravian Children's home near Kwethluk.

“Gus Martin also took numerous photographs of village life, which add greatly to the visual history of the region, already well represented in the work of Reverend Drebert, Hans Himmelheber, and Leuman Waugh [Fienup-Riordan 1991 (ed.), 2000, 2005 (ed.)]. Ann Fienup-Riordan Anchorage 11 May 2006.”¹

Scope and Content Description:

This collection consists of 18 boxes of documents, scrapbooks, stereo cards, one photo album, loose photographic prints, photographic postcards, negatives, and glass lantern slides primarily created by Gus and Bess Martin during their time in Central Yup'ik territory.

The documents include correspondence, drawings, hand-written Yugtun (Central Alaskan Yup'ik language) to English grammar sheets, Reports, and misc. small publications related to Martin's work.

The photographs depict Yup'ik communities and cultural activities, including holiday celebrations, fish camps and fishing, dancing, grasswork, hunters and hunting, stretching muskrat skins, sweat bathing, residences (interior and exterior views), village aerials, and modes of transportation. Notably, many of the images have detailed transcriptions about the people and activities shown, including the Indigenous names for some individuals. Also in the collection are images of the small radio station Martin set up, as well as various images of his early snow machines and Mission trips by dogsled. See below for a detailed description of the materials.

ADMINISTRATIVE INFORMATION

Acquisition and Appraisal Information

The collection was purchased by the Museum from Marian Martin Kenner in 2007.

Processing Note

A prior archivist noted that some glass plates are cracked.

Between April-June 2026, the collection underwent additional processing to consolidate the collection and create greater accessibility for researchers. This included screening materials for sensitive content and rehousing items as appropriate. Additionally, non-accessioned duplicative materials were reviewed and removed from the collection. As a result, the collection was consolidated into 18 boxes from the original 22 boxes.

Separated Materials

Boxes 10a and 10b are with glass slide storage. Nitrate negatives are in the freezer.
