Administrative/Biographical History:

Fred Henton was born in 1889/1890. He travelled to Alaska as a mail-carrier, game guide, prospector, explorer, and dog musher. Henton became a stowaway on the S. S. "Corwin" in 1905, arriving in Nome at just 15 years old. In 1913, he took charge of the 42 sled dogs travelling with the Stefansson Canadian Arctic expedition. He was on board the whaling ship

“Karluk” when it became trapped in ice and was one of few crewmembers to survive the ordeal. He had a lodge at Kanatak, and charted Kodiak Island on foot, a project which took nine years. From 1942-44, Henton ran the Van Glider Hotel in Seward. Later in his life, he established a lodge at the confluence of the Kenai and Russian Rivers on the Kenai Peninsula. Fred Henton passed in 1965.

Scope and Content Description:

The collection consists of photographic prints and negative copies. The prints are primarily black and white, with some sepia and hand-tinted color prints. The collection includes snapshots, postcards, and some commercial photographs, most notably by the Lomen Bros. of Nome. The collection depicts scenes of life in various rural and urban locales in Alaska. Henton documents scenery, people, wildlife, Indigenous culture, transportation, exploration, and architecture throughout his travels. Notable events in the collection include images of Henton with his world record Kodiak bear; various sled dog races and parades in Nome, such as the Solomon Derby and All Alaska Sweepstakes; the wreckage after a major storm in Nome, 1913; and President Harding’s visit to Seward in 1923.

Arrangement: Arranged by previous archivist.
